2027 Iceland: In the Wake of the Vikings

with Dr. Jennifer Verdolin

Land of volcanoes. Land of glaciers. Stomping ground of Vikings. Setting of countless legends and Norse sagas. These are some of the things that attract inquisitive travelers to this island nation in the North Atlantic, and this voyage has them all, but with something even more exceptional. You'll be joined by Professor Jennifer Verdolin, an animal behavior scientist, author, speaker, and conservationist, whose deep knowledge and dedication to the preservation of Iceland's natural beauty will transform the way you see every landscape.

Along your route you will encounter the fishermen of Isafjordur and Grimsey. You'll marvel at the abundance of birdlife everywhere, especially on Grimsey and Heimaey, explore Goðafoss and Dynjandi waterfalls, walk through lava caves at Vatnshellir, and witness the lingering power of the 1973 Mt. Eldfell eruption. But more than a standard voyage, this will be enriched by on-board lectures and on-the-ground insight from Prof. Verdolin, bringing deeper context to what you see through the lens of science as well as history. You'll explore Skálinn Viking Center in Thingeyri not just as a visitor, but as a student of myth and history. It's all here on this extraordinary voyage to the land of fire and ice.

Continue to Perlan, where interactive displays reveal Iceland's natural wonders, from glaciers to the northern lights, and enjoy panoramic views of the city. Day 3: Sailing in the Westman Islands

The Westman Islands, located off Iceland's southern coast, are home to one of the world's largest seasonal puffin colonies and countless other seabirds, making them an unparalleled site for observing avian ecology. Cruise along the dramatic cliffs to witness this abundance before arriving at Heimaey, the archipelago's largest island. Here, walk across the lava field formed during the 1973 eruption of Mt. Eldfell, which reshaped the island and forced a complete evacuation of its residents. At the Eldheimar Museum, interactive exhibits chronicle a deeper understanding of volcanic processes and the remarkable story of the community's survival and rebuilding.

Day 4: Volcanic Wonders

Today's excursion provides an in-depth look at the volcanic forces that shaped the Snæfellsjökull Peninsula, a region steeped in both natural history and legend. Begin with a climb to the rim of Saxhóll Crater, where panoramic views showcase the Snæfellsjökull Glacier, a stratovolcano capped by ice that has long inspired myth and literature. As you hike among smaller craters and lava fields, gain insight into the peninsula's dramatic geologic evolution before reaching Dritvik, a pebble beach that once supported a thriving fishing community. The day culminates in a descent into Vatnshellir Cave, a 7,000-year-old lava tube whose eerie passageways highlight Iceland's volcanic origins and sparked Jules Verne's classic tale Journey to the Center of the Earth.

Day 5: Life in the Far North

Grimsey—Iceland’s northernmost inhabited island—is uniquely marked by the Arctic Circle, which runs directly through its center. With a small community of about 100 residents, largely sustained by fishing the rich North Atlantic waters, Grimsey offers a compelling example of human resilience in a remote environment. The island is equally renowned for its ecological importance, providing critical nesting grounds for seabirds. Visitors can observe species such as the Black-legged Kittiwake, Northern Fulmar, Razorbill, and Black Guillemot, along with one of Iceland’s largest colonies of Atlantic Puffins. Grimsey also hosts extensive Arctic Tern nesting sites, highlighting its significance for avian biodiversity and conservation.

Day 6: Turning Points in Icelandic History

Your local guide will provide an overview of Akureyri, the cultural and economic hub of northern Iceland, whose harbor has long connected the region to global trade. From there, travel inland to Goðafoss, the famed “Waterfall of the Gods.” Beyond its dramatic cascade, this site holds profound historical importance: It was here in the year 1000 that Iceland officially converted to Christianity, marking a turning point in the nation’s cultural identity. Returning to town, visit the Laufás Folk Museum, a preserved turf farm that offers insight into rural domestic life of the 19th century. Conclude at the Akureyri Botanical Garden, where more than 7,000 species flourish under subarctic conditions, showcasing human ingenuity in adapting to extreme environments.

Day 7: Thingeyri’s Viking Past

Today’s program highlights Iceland’s Viking heritage with a visit to the Skálinn Viking Center in Thingeyri. Here, examine reconstructions of clothing, handicrafts, and weaponry that illuminate everyday life during the Norse settlement of the 9th and 10th centuries. Hands-on exhibits provide a deeper appreciation of the skills required for survival in this harsh environment, from textile production to shipbuilding. You may also view a replica Viking ship moored in the harbor, underscoring the seafaring expertise that enabled exploration and settlement across the North Atlantic. On the return to Ísafjörður, pause at the spectacular Dynjandi Waterfall, where cascading tiers of water demonstrate Iceland’s powerful glacial and tectonic forces.

Included Meals: Breakfast, Lunch, Dinner

Day 8: Where Continents Collide

On your final day, journey inland across Iceland's dramatic rift valley, where the North American and Eurasian tectonic plates visibly diverge, offering a living lesson in geology. Continue to Friðheimar Horse Farm and Greenhouse, where you will learn how Icelanders harness geothermal energy and advanced horticultural methods to grow fresh produce year-round in a challenging climate. The visit illustrates both agricultural innovation and the cultural importance of the Icelandic horse. Conclude your experience at the nearby Laugarás Lagoon a newly developed, mineral-rich two-story oasis where bathing traditions highlight the enduring connection between natural resources and daily life and enjoy lunch here.
